The ZCMB - A Brief History

Zanesville flourished with performing arts activities in the late 1800s, and the John Bauer Band was among them. The band was organized before 1880 and averaged 15 to 20 members. When the band leader died in 1912, his ensemble was taken over by the American Rolling Mills Company, and became known as the Armco Band.

The 7th Regiment and Armco bands held their concerts locally, in McIntire Park and Putnam Park. By 1923, the two bands had merged, taking the present day name of Zanesville Memorial Concert Band.

Today, funds for the concerts are raised by individual and corporate contributions. An endowment fund has also been established for anyone wishing to make a donation towards the ZMCB.

The band's current home is Zane's Landing Park, along the eastern banks of the Muskingum River in downtown Zanesville. Concerts are performed on five Sunday evenings through the summer.

Concerts remain free to the public, thanks to the generosity of our supporters.

American Folk Rhapsody No. 2 by Clare Grundman

Clare Ewing Grundman (1913 – 1996) is one of the most prolific and highly respected composers for band on the American scene today. He is represented in one publisher's catalogue with nearly 50 works for band, in addition to other media.

Grundman grew up in Ohio earning both a Bachelor of Science and Master of Arts degrees at The Ohio State University. From 1937 to 1941, he taught arranging, woodwind, and band at OSU and during World War II, he was a member of the US Coast Guard.

Grundman's activities also included scores and arrangements for radio, television, motion pictures, ballet, and Broadway musicals. American Folk Rhapsody No. 2 combines the tunes Billy Boy, Skip to My Lou and Shenandoah into a beautiful piece for concert band.

Highlights from "Star Trek Into Darkness" arr. by Michael Brown

This medley from 2013's blockbuster movie by the same name, features a mixture of songs, both familiar and new, to fans of the science fiction series. Included within are the "Theme from Star Trek," "Enterprising Young Men," "To Boldly Go," and "Ode to Harrison."

Once again, Kirk, Spock, McCoy, Scotty and the rest of the crew of the Starship Enterprise are on duty, as they have been for the past 50 years, to protect the Universe...

Curtain Call arr. by John Wasson

John Wasson (b. 1956) leads a busy life as a composer, arranger, producer and performer. His works have been performed by such notable organizations as the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, the U.S. Air Force "Airmen of Note", The Gatlin Brothers, and the Dallas Brass. He has written commissioned works for the Symphony Orchestras of Minnesota, Houston, Dallas, Virginia Beach and Fort Worth, as well as the U. S. Air Force Academy Band and the Dallas Wind Symphony.

Originally composed for the five brass players and percussionist of the Dallas Brass, Curtin Call is a tribute to all great finales, encores and reprises written for the stage. Beware of the deceptive ending.

The Stars and Stripes Forever by John Philip Sousa

Sousa wrote in his autobiography, that he composed this march in his head on Christmas Day in 1896. He was on an ocean liner returning to the United States, having just learned of the death of his longtime manager, David Blakely. He committed it to paper when he reached shore. It was first performed in May of 1897 and was immediately greeted with enthusiasm. Sousa also wrote a set of lyrics, which led to a 1942 four part choral version of the march.

This is the National March of the United States of America, by a 1987 act of the U.S. Congress and signed into law by President Ronald Reagan.

Selections from "Annie" by Charles Strouse and Martin Charnin, arr. by Philip Lang

The idea of creating a musical based on Harold Gray's "Little Orphan Annie" comic strip originated with lyricist/director Martin Charnin. Playwright Thomas Meehan and composer Charles Strouse were initially skeptical of the idea, but Charnin quickly won them over with his enthusiasm for the project. The story revolves around Annie, an 11-year-old orphan who longs for her parents to rescue her from the Municipal Orphanage and its mean-spirited matron, Agatha Hannigan. When billionaire Oliver Warbucks stumbles upon the little orphan and decides to adopt her, he must first deal with Miss Hannigan's opportunistic schemes. Annie opened at the Alvin Theatre on April 21, 1977. The New York production ran for 2,377 performances, making it the third longest running musical of the 1970s. In 1982, the movie version was released starring Albert Finney, Aileen Quinn, Ann Reinking, and Carol Burnett.

Philip Lang was known as the "Dean of American Orchestration." Lang wrote approximately 114 arrangements and 30 published works for band. He did orchestrations for 58 Broadway musicals, including "Annie." This arrangement includes the following selections...It's a Hard Knock Life, N.Y.C., You're Never Fully Dressed Without a Smile, Maybe, Easy Street, I Don't Need Anything but You, and Tomorrow.

Seventy Six Trombones March by Meredith Willson, arr. by Ted Ricketts

The Music Man was one of the most popular musicals ever written. As composer, lyricist, and librettist, Meredith Willson began working on the show in 1951. After 38 re-writes it was finally produced in 1957, starring Robert Preston and Barbara Cook. During a Broadway run of 1,375 performances, it grossed above 10 million dollars, won 5 Tony Awards, and a Grammy Award. It was also made into a movie in 1962 starring Preston and Shirley Jones. Its most recent reincarnation was a TV movie in 2003 starring Matthew Broderick and Kristen Chenoweth. Seventy Six Trombones is the signature song from the musical.

"Professor" Harold Hill uses the song to help the townspeople of the fictional River City, Iowa, around 1912, visualize their children playing in an enormous marching band. An average-sized high-school marching band might have 10 musicians playing the trombone, and a large university band seldom has more than 30. The band that Harold is describing includes 76 trombones, 110 cornets, "over a thousand reeds," and "fifty mounted cannon" (actually quite popular in bands of the time); if such a band actually existed, it would be at least a tenth of a mile long.

Sunday, July 30th, 2017 / Zane's Landing Park

Interestingly, there are no horseborne troops in the story, but there is a group of overweight dancers who are often referred to jokingly as the "light cavalry." The overture, apart from its catchy rhythms, is striking for its frequent changes of style. The opening fanfare is nothing less than majestic (Maestoso). It soon gives way to a fast transition (Allegro) to the first "cavalry" music (Allegretto brillante). A short cadenza for clarinet leads to a darkly expressive "Hungarian" passage, and, finally, the rousing return of lively cavalry music (Tempo primo).

Americans We by Henry Fillmore

Henry Fillmore is best known as a prolific composer and arranger of music for wind band. His many marches, gallops, instrumental novelties and instrumental music accompanied many a circus presentation. The march Americans We is one of Fillmore's most famous compositions. It borrows from a sentimental British tune called "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" which was originally attributed to Irish and Scottish heritage. The song soon became part of America's musical heritage.

Fillmore composed Americans We sometime in the late 1920s. The work was first performed by the Fillmore Band as part of a concert series at the Cincinnati Zoo in 1928. Fillmore used a variety of titles for the march during these initial performances, but by the time of publication in 1929, he had selected the present title and added the dedication "to all of us." It is considered one of Fillmore's best marches.

Bach/Schubach Inventions for Concert Band

300 years ago J.S. Bach composed 15 little pieces for the keyboard with a one-note melody in each hand. They were called 2-Part Inventions, beloved by keyboardists for generations. Completed in 1997, Zanesville composer David Schubach composed keyboard duets to be played with the original music. Written in Bach's style, the new melodies intertwine with the Baroque melodies to give an almost symphonic effect.

Schubach has now adapted his keyboard duets for full concert band. Tonight we will hear three of the Inventions. First #14 in Bb, built on a lilting rhythmic motif. For the next two pieces Schubach has de-constructed the music so that we can hear the Bach and the Schubach separately, then combined for the full ensemble. Invention 4 in D minor begins with the brass instruments alone playing the Schubach melodies; then the woodwinds alone playing the Bach melodies. Then they all join together. For Invention 8 in F major Schubach has reversed the pattern, starting with the woodwinds playing the Schubach; then the brass plays the Bach; then combined.

Tonight is the first performance concert band setting. So ladies and gentlemen - the premiere of Bach/Schubach Inventions for Concert Band.

Festival Overture on the American National Air by Dudley Buck, arr. by Jim Bock

Dudley Buck (1839-1909) was one of the leading names in 19th-century American concert music. Remembered today for a handful of choral songs and organ works, he was known during his life for his large-scale secular cantatas, and also composed two operas, a variety of orchestral works, and solo songs.

Buck was born in Hartford, Connecticut, to a family that traced its roots back to the original settlers of Wethersfield in 1647. His father, a successful businessman and the owner of a steamship line, hoped that his son would eventually enter the family business; however, Dudley's musical aptitude eventually impressed his father so much that he agreed to send him to Europe to complete his training. The organ would become Buck's primary instrument.

Buck moved to Chicago in 1869, only to lose his home, his library, and all his manuscripts in the great fire of 1871. He began anew in Boston and eventually moved to Brooklyn.

The Festival Overture on the American National Air was composed, or at least premiered, in 1879. It is in most respects a conventional concert overture in sonata-allegro form, incorporating The Star Spangled Banner as the second theme. Remember, The Star Spangled Banner was not formally adopted as the National Anthem of the United States until 1931.

After a few performances in the 1870s and 80s, the overture was forgotten for several decades. The manuscript was sent to G. Schirmer in the hope that it would be published, but that hope came to nothing. Schirmer donated the score to the Library of Congress in 1951, where it remained unnoticed until 1968, when it was rediscovered and recorded for the first time.

Tonight's arrangement was done by Zanesville Memorial Band Member Jim Bock, a member of our tuba section, retired Band Director from Cambridge High School and husband of our Artistic Director.

To honor the United States of America please stand when directed, join our vocalist Charles Savage and lend your voices, as the band performs our national anthem...The Star Spangled Banner, included in Dudley Buck's composition and Jim Bock's arrangement of... Festival Overture on the American National Air.

Light Cavalry Overture by Franz von Suppe, arr. by Henry Fillmore

Franz von Suppé (1819-1895) was an Austrian composer of light operas. This one is set in the 18th century amid the court intrigues of a Baron and his Hungarian countess lover, whose ballet company is referred to as the 'light cavalry'. While the operetta is obscure, its overture is one of von Suppé's best known works and premiered in Vienna in 1866.
